The Texas Aggie Conservatives Endorse Rob Curnock for Congressional District 17 Republican Primary

College Station, TX – The Texas Aggie Conservatives, a recognized student organization of Texas A&M, are throwing their support behind Rob Curnock in the Congressional District 17 Republican Primary Race. The Texas Aggie Conservatives cite Curnock’s sound conservative principles and strong general election prospects as the reason for the endorsement.

“Curnock is a Ronald Reagan Conservative: he advocates for free market healthcare reform, limited Constitutional government, the sanctity of life, and lower taxes,” Texas Aggie Conservative Chairman Justin Pulliam said. “He is the candidate Central Texas needs representing us in DC.”

Curnock was 4.5 points short of defeating liberal Democrat Chet Edwards in the 2008 election.

“I am honored and grateful for the support of a major voice advocating conservative values among college students in Central Texas,” Curnock said. “We look forward to working with the Texas Aggie Conservatives to help engage young voters in the political process to send a true conservative to Congress to represent District 17.”
